Filipino Migrant Workers in the Western World

The Filipinos that are forced to emigrate in other countries due to the state of living in the Philippines made it harder to stay working in the country. For other countries like Western countries, migrant workers contribute largely to the gross domestic product (GDP) of a country that he/she works from. Another contribution that majorly affect the other countries is the labor force, where migrant workers add to the labor needed and done by another country.
